

CHINESE LANGUAGE AND CULTURE GRADES 7-8-9

RATIONALE

The value for Canadian society as a whole of learning the Chinese language¹ is significant and can be summarized as follows. Learning Chinese leads to:

- increased awareness of and sensitivity to cultural and linguistic diversity
- improved potential in the Canadian and global marketplace and workplace
- enhanced role in the international community.

Apart from the common advantages related to the learning of any international language, the learning of Chinese permits an insight into the rich and varied cultures developed in the Chinese-speaking world and bestows more opportunity to communicate directly with its people. The learning of Chinese, as any other language, develops awareness of and sensitivity to cultural and linguistic diversity. In addition to preserving cultural identity, it is also a means of cultural enrichment and is the best means of fostering understanding and respect among peoples and countries. Furthermore, it gives the opportunity to question and challenge one's own cultural assumptions, values and perspectives and contribute positively to society. These are benefits that can be gained by all students of Chinese, regardless of their background or age.

For those students who already have some knowledge of the Chinese language or a family connection to the culture, learning Chinese offers an opportunity to renew contact with their language and culture. For some, it may contribute to developing and maintaining literacy.

There is significant evidence to suggest that learning another language contributes to the development of first language skills and enhances cognitive functioning. Learning a second language increases the ability to conceptualize, to think abstractly, and it fosters more cognitive flexibility, greater divergent thinking, creativity and metalinguistic competence.

In today's world, the knowledge of a second language and culture in general, and Chinese in particular, is an economic advantage for the individual, providing language skills that enable people to communicate and interact effectively in the global society.

The Chinese Language and Culture Grades 7-8-9 program is intended for students who are beginning their study of Chinese language and culture in Grade 7.

CHINESE LANGUAGE AND CULTURE GRADES 7–8–9

RATIONALE

The value for Canadian society as a whole of learning the Chinese language¹ is significant and can be summarized as follows. Learning Chinese leads to:

- increased awareness of and sensitivity to cultural and linguistic diversity
- improved potential in the Canadian and global marketplace and workplace
- enhanced role in the international community.

Apart from the common advantages related to the learning of any international language, the learning of Chinese permits an insight into the rich and varied cultures developed in the Chinese-speaking world and bestows more opportunity to communicate directly with its people. The learning of Chinese, as any other language, develops awareness of and sensitivity to cultural and linguistic diversity. In addition to preserving cultural identity, it is also a means of cultural enrichment and is the best means of fostering understanding and respect among peoples and countries. Furthermore, it gives the opportunity to identify, question and challenge one's own cultural assumptions, values and perspectives and contribute positively to society. These are benefits that can be gained by all students of Chinese, regardless of their background or heritage.

For those students who already have some knowledge of the Chinese language or a family connection to the culture, learning Chinese offers an opportunity to renew contact with their language and culture. For some, it may contribute to developing and maintaining literacy.

There is significant evidence to suggest that learning another language contributes to the development of first language skills and enhances cognitive functioning. Learning a second language increases the ability to conceptualize, to think abstractly, and it fosters more cognitive flexibility, greater divergent thinking, creativity and metalinguistic competence.

In today's world, the knowledge of a second language and culture in general, and Chinese in particular, is an economic advantage for the individual, providing language skills that enable people to communicate and interact effectively in the global society.

The Chinese Language and Culture Grades 7–8–9 program is intended for students who are beginning their study of Chinese language and culture in Grade 7.

1. Chinese is also commonly referred to as Guoyu, Hanyu, Huayu, Mandarin, Putonghua or Zhongwen.

ASSUMPTIONS

The following statements are assumptions that have guided the development of the Chinese Language and Culture Grades 7–8–9 Program of Studies.

- Language is communication.
- All students can be successful learners of language and culture, although they will learn in a variety of ways and acquire proficiency at varied rates.
- All languages can be taught and learned.
- Learning Chinese as a second language enhances the student's primary language as well as cognitive development and knowledge acquisition. This is true of children who come to the class with some knowledge of Chinese and develop literacy skills in that language. It is also true for children who have no knowledge of Chinese and who are learning it as a second or additional language.

THE CONCEPTUAL MODEL

The aim of the Chinese Language and Culture Grades 7–8–9 Program of Studies is the development of communicative competence in Chinese.

Four Components

For the purposes of this program of studies, communicative competence is represented by four interrelated and interdependent components.

Applications deal with what the students will be able to do with the language, the functions they will be able to perform and the contexts in which they will be able to operate.

Language Competence addresses the students' knowledge of the language and their ability to use that knowledge to interpret and produce meaningful texts appropriate to the situations in which they are used.

...to learn and communicate more efficiently.

Global Citizenship aims to develop intercultural competence, with a particular focus on Chinese culture.

Each of these components is described more fully at the beginning of the corresponding section of this program of studies.

Modes of Communication

Because of the focus on using language to communicate in specific contexts, with a particular purpose or task in mind, three modes of communication are used to organize some of the specific outcomes.

Interaction is most often direct, face-to-face oral communication, but it can take the form of written communication between individuals, using such a medium as e-mail where the exchange of information is fairly immediate. It is characterized principally by the opportunity to negotiate meaning actively; that is, making others understand and working to understand others. Interactive communication generally requires quicker processing but less accuracy than the other two modes.

Interpretation is receptive communication of oral and written messages in contexts where the listener or reader is not in direct contact with the creator of the message. While there is no opportunity to ask for clarification, there is sometimes the possibility of rereading or listening again, consulting references, or making the meaning clearer in other ways. Reading and listening will sometimes involve viewing and interpreting visual elements, such as illustrations in books or moving images in television and film. Interpretation goes beyond a literal comprehension to include an understanding of some of the unspoken or unwritten meaning intended by the speaker or author.

Production is communication of oral and written messages in contexts where the audience is not in personal contact with the speaker or writer, or in situations of one-to-many communication; e.g., a lecture or a performance where there is no opportunity for the listener to interact with the speaker. Oral and written presentations will sometimes be enhanced by representing the meaning visually, using pictures, diagrams, models, drama techniques or other nonverbal forms of communication. Greater knowledge of the language and culture is required to ensure that communication is successful, since the participants cannot directly negotiate meaning.

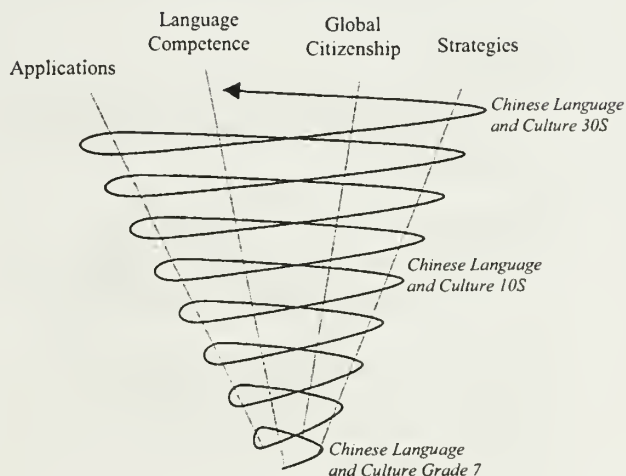

Lexical Fields

In the Chinese Language and Culture Grades 7–8–9 Program of Studies, students will be able to use words and expressions in a range of lexical fields, including:

Grade 7	Grade 8	Grade 9
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • self • school • family • friends • holidays • any other lexical fields that meet the needs and interests of the students 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • food • daily life • weather • clothing • hobbies • any other lexical fields that meet the needs and interests of the students 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • leisure activities • dwellings • shopping • sports and exercise • social life • any other lexical fields that meet the needs and interests of the students

A Spiral Progression

Language learning is integrative, not merely cumulative. Each new element that is added must be integrated into the whole of what has gone before. The model that best represents the students' language learning progress is an expanding spiral. Their progression is not only vertical (e.g., increased proficiency) but also horizontal (e.g., broader range of applications and experience with more vocabulary, text forms, contexts and so on). The spiral also represents how language learning activities are best structured. Particular lexical fields, learning strategies or language functions, for example, are revisited at different points in the program, but from a different perspective, in broader contexts or at a slightly higher level of proficiency each time. Learning is extended, reinforced and broadened with each successive pass.

ORGANIZATION OF THE PROGRAM OF STUDIES

General Outcomes

General outcomes are broad statements identifying the knowledge, skills and attitudes that students are expected to achieve in the course of their language learning experience. The four general outcomes serve as the foundation for the Chinese Language and Culture Grades 7–8–9 Program of Studies and are based on the conceptual model outlined on the preceding pages.

Applications

- Students will use Chinese in a variety of situations and for a variety of purposes.

Language Competence

- Students will use Chinese effectively and competently.

Strategies

- Students will know and use strategies to maximize the effectiveness of learning and communication.

Global Citizenship

- Students will acquire the knowledge, skills and attitudes to be effective global citizens.

The order in which the general outcomes are presented in the program of studies does not represent a sequential order, nor does it indicate the relative importance of each component. The general outcomes are to be implemented in an integrated manner.

Specific Outcomes

Each general outcome is further broken down into specific outcomes that students are to achieve by the end of each grade. The specific outcomes are interrelated and interdependent. In most classroom activities, a number of learning outcomes will be dealt with in an integrated manner.

The specific outcomes are categorized under cluster headings, which show the scope of each of the four general outcomes. These headings are shown as bullets in the chart on the following page.

The specific outcomes are further categorized by strands, which show the developmental flow of learning from the beginning to the end of the program. However, an outcome for a particular grade will not be dealt with only in that particular year of the program. The spiral progression that is part of the conceptual model means that activities in the years preceding will prepare the ground for acquisition and in the years following will broaden applications.

Note: The outcomes in this program of studies require that the simplified version/form of Chinese characters be acquired by the students. However, given the reality of mixed usage, students will not be penalized for using traditional forms.

General Outcomes

Applications

Students will use Chinese in a variety of situations and for a variety of purposes.

- to receive and impart information
- to express emotions and personal perspectives
- to get things done
- to form, maintain and change interpersonal relationships
- to extend their knowledge of the world
- to pursue imaginative purposes and personal enjoyment

Language Competence

Students will use Chinese effectively and competently.

- interpret and produce texts
- attend to form
- apply knowledge of the sociocultural/ sociolinguistic context
- apply knowledge of how discourse is organized, structured and sequenced

Strategies

Students will know and use strategies to maximize the effectiveness of learning and communication.

- language learning
- language use
- general learning

Global Citizenship

Students will acquire the knowledge, skills and attitudes to be effective global citizens.

- historical and contemporary elements of Chinese culture
- affirming and valuing diversity
- personal and career opportunities

Applications

APPLICATIONS

The specific learning outcomes under the heading Applications deal with what the students will be able to do with the Chinese language, that is, the functions they will be able to perform and the contexts in which they will be able to operate.

Different models of communicative competence have organized language functions in a variety of ways. The organizational structure chosen here reflects the needs and interests of students in a classroom where activities are focused on meaning and are interactive. For example, the strand entitled “manage group actions” has been included to ensure that students acquire the Chinese language knowledge and skills necessary to function independently in small groups, since this is an effective way of organizing second language classrooms. The cluster of strands under the heading “to extend their knowledge of the world” will accommodate a content-based approach to language learning where students learn content from another subject area as they learn the Chinese language.

The level of linguistic, sociolinguistic and discourse competence that students will exhibit when carrying out the functions is defined in the specific learning outcomes for Language Competence for each grade. To know how well students will be able to perform the specific function, the Applications outcomes must be read in conjunction with the Language Competence outcomes.

General Outcome for Applications

Students will use Chinese in a variety of situations and for a variety of purposes.

A-1 to receive and impart information

Grade 7

Grade 8

Grade 9

Students will be able to:

A-1.1 share factual information	a. share basic information; e.g., own name	a. ask for and provide information	a. ask for and provide information on a range of familiar topics
	b. identify concrete people, places and things	b. describe people, places and things	b. describe people, places, things and a series of events or actions
		c. understand and respond to simple questions

A-2 to express emotions and personal perspectives

Students will be able to:

A-2.1 share ideas, thoughts, opinions, preferences	a. express simple preferences	a. inquire about and express simple thoughts and preferences	a. inquire about and express likes and dislikes, e.g., I don't like running. I like swimming
		b. express a personal response to a variety of situations; e.g., I like/dislike	b. give simple reasons for thoughts and preferences; e.g., I don't want this bag because it's too expensive
A-2.2 share emotions, feelings			c. indicate degree of preference
	a. recognize expressions of basic emotions and feelings	a. express basic emotions and feelings	a. inquire about, express and respond to basic emotions and feelings; e.g., What's the matter?

General Outcome for Applications

Students will use Chinese in a variety of situations and for a variety of purposes.

A-3 to get things done

Grade 7

Grade 8

Grade 9

Students will be able to:

A-3.1 guide actions of others	a.	indicate basic needs and wants	a.	make simple requests	a.	give and follow short sequences of instructions; e.g., Please close the door; turn to page 50
	b.	give and respond to simple oral instructions or commands	b.	suggest a course of action and respond to a suggestion
	c.	ask for permission
A-3.2 state personal actions	a.	state simple personal actions	a.	state and describe personal actions	a.	express a desire to do something
			b.	inquire about and express ability and inability to do something; e.g., Can you use chopsticks? Yes, I can, but not very well.
A-3.3 manage group actions	a.	manage turn-taking	a.	ask for help or clarification	a.	suggest, initiate or direct action in group activities

A-4 to form, maintain and change interpersonal relationships

Students will be able to:

A-4.1 manage personal relationships	a.	exchange greetings and farewells	a.	initiate relationships; e.g., invite others to participate	a.	talk about themselves
	b.	address a new acquaintance	b.	apologize	b.	respond to others
	c.	introduce themselves	c.	refuse politely	c.	make and break social engagements; e.g., Let's go swimming. No, I can't, I am busy.
	d.	exchange some basic personal information

General Outcome for Applications

Students will use Chinese in a variety of situations and for a variety of purposes.

A-5 to extend their knowledge of the world

	Grade 7	Grade 8	Grade 9
Students will be able to:
A-5.1 discover and explore	a. ask simple questions; e.g., Who is your teacher? What is this? How many people are in your family?	a. ask basic questions to gain knowledge b. seek information c. make and talk about personal observations	a. ask questions to gain knowledge and clarify understanding b. gather information
A-5.2 gather and organize information	a. gather simple information b. organize items in different ways	a. gather information b. sequence items in different ways	a. compare and contrast items in simple ways b. compose simple questions to guide research c. record observations
A-5.3 solve problems	a. experience problem-solving situations in the classroom	a. recognize a problem	a. identify a problem b. choose between alternative solutions
A-5.4 explore opinions and values	a. respond to the preferences, opinions and values of others; e.g., likes and dislikes, sports, pets, foods	a. gather opinions	a. gather and compare personal views and opinions

General Outcome for Applications

Students will use Chinese in a variety of situations and for a variety of purposes.

A-6 to pursue imaginative purposes and personal enjoyment

Grade 7

Grade 8

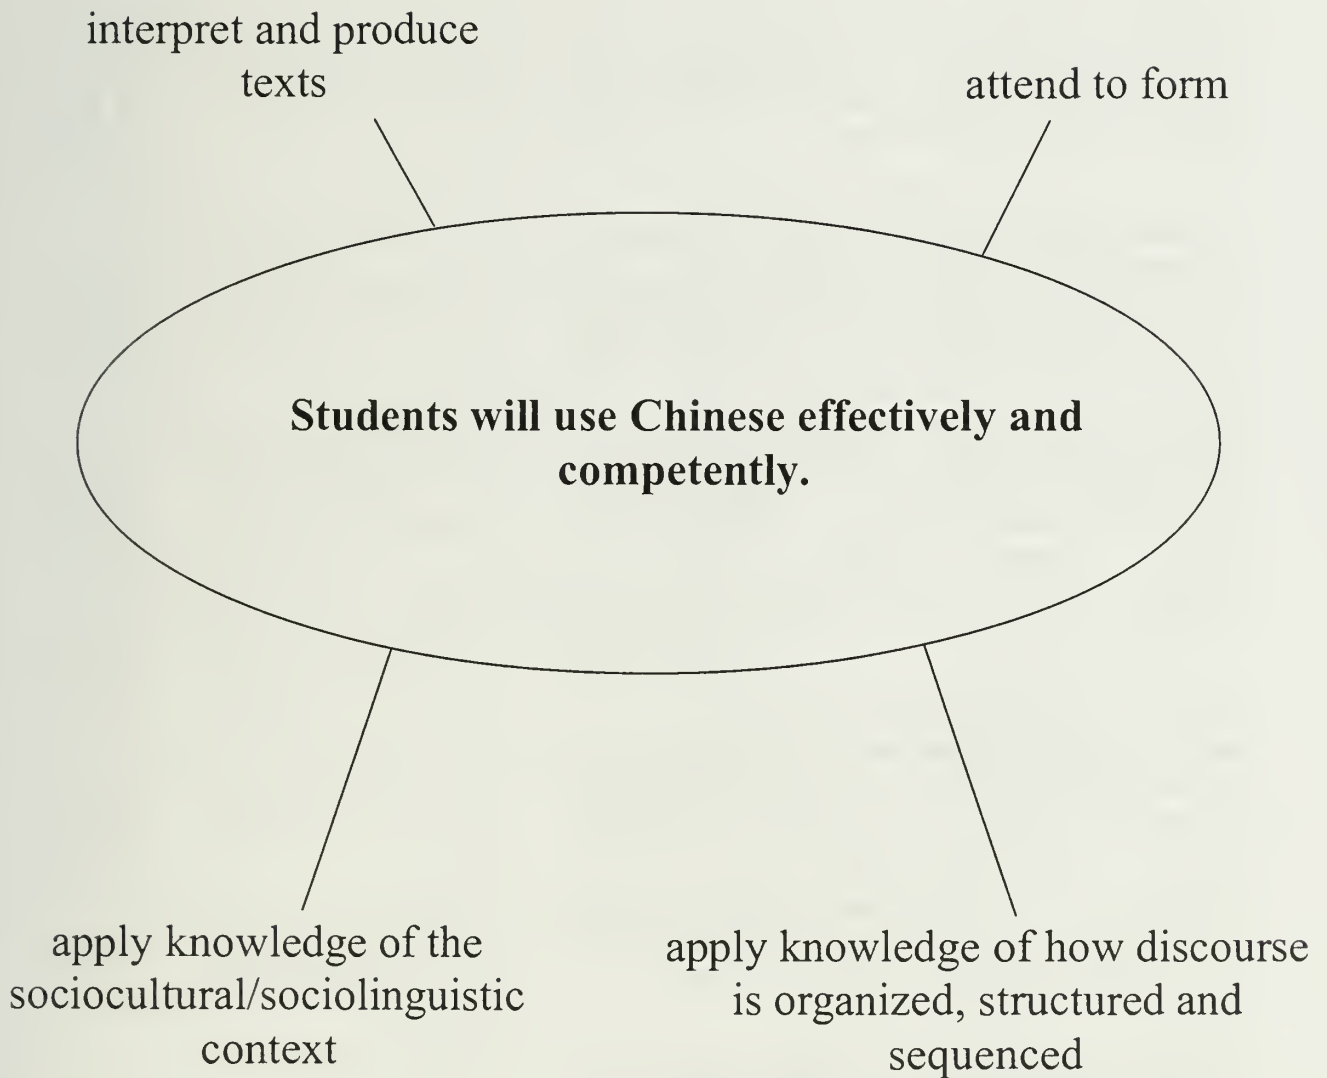

Grade 9

Students will be able to:

A-6.1 humour/fun	a. identify words or situations that are personally humorous; e.g., mā, má, mǎ, mà	a. use the language for fun; e.g., practice tongue twisters	a. use the language for fun and humour; e.g., read simple rhymes
A-6.2 creative/aesthetic purposes	a. experience creative/aesthetic uses of language	a. participate in creative/aesthetic language activities	a. use the language for creative/aesthetic purposes
A-6.3 personal enjoyment	a. use the language for personal enjoyment	a. use the language for personal enjoyment	a. use the language for personal enjoyment

Language Competence

LANGUAGE COMPETENCE

Language competence is a broad term which includes linguistic or grammatical competence, discourse competence, sociolinguistic or sociocultural competence and what might be called textual competence. The specific learning outcomes under Language Competence deal with knowledge of the Chinese language and the ability to use that knowledge to interpret and produce meaningful texts appropriate to the situation in which they are used. Language competence is best developed in the context of activities or tasks where the language is used for real purposes; in other words, in practical applications.

Note: The outcomes in this program of studies require that the simplified version/form of Chinese characters be acquired by the students. However, given the reality of mixed usage, students will not be penalized for using traditional forms.

The various components of language competence are grouped under four cluster headings—see the illustration on the preceding page. Under each of these headings there are several strands, identified by strand headings on the left end of each row, which show the developmental flow of learning from grade to grade. Each strand deals with a single aspect of language competence. For example, under the cluster heading “attend to form,” there is a strand for phonology (pronunciation, stress, intonation), orthography (spelling, mechanical features), lexicon (vocabulary words and phrases) and grammatical elements.

Although the outcomes isolate these individual aspects, language competence should be developed through classroom activities that focus on meaningful uses of the Chinese language and on language in context. Tasks will be chosen based on the needs, interests and experiences of students. The vocabulary, grammar structures, text forms and social conventions necessary to carry out this task will be taught, practised and assessed as students are involved in various aspects of the task itself, not in isolation.

Strategic competence is often closely associated with language competence, since students need to learn ways to compensate for low proficiency in the early stages of learning if they are to engage in authentic language use from the beginning. This component is included in the language use strategies in the Strategies section.

Strategies

STRATEGIES

Under the Strategies heading are specific learning outcomes that will help students learn and communicate more effectively. Strategic competence has long been recognized as an important component of communicative competence.

The strategies are grouped under three cluster headings—see the illustration on the preceding page. Under each of these headings there are several strands which show the development of awareness and skill in using strategies from grade to grade. Each strand deals with a specific category of strategies. Language learning and general learning strategies are categorized as cognitive, metacognitive and social/affective. The language use strategies are organized by communicative mode: interactive, interpretive and productive.

The strategies that students choose depend on the task they are engaged in as well as on other factors, such as their preferred learning style, personality, age, attitude and cultural background. Strategies that work well for one person may not be effective for another person, or may not be suitable in a different situation. For this reason it is not particularly useful to say that students should be aware of, or able to use, a specific strategy at a particular grade level. Consequently, the specific outcomes describe the students' knowledge of and ability to use general types of strategies. More specific strategies for each general category or type are included in the comprehensive list of strategies below. The specific strategies provided in the comprehensive list are not prescriptive but are provided as an illustration of how the general strategies in the specific outcomes might be developed.

Teachers need to know and be able to demonstrate a broad range of strategies from which students are then able to choose in order to communicate effectively. Strategies of all kinds are best taught in the context of learning activities where students can apply them immediately and then reflect on their use.

COMPREHENSIVE LIST OF STRATEGIES

Language Learning Strategies

Cognitive

- listen attentively
- perform actions to match the words of a song, story or rhyme
- learn short rhymes or songs to practise new vocabulary or sentence patterns, or to learn Pinyin
- imitate sounds, tones and intonation patterns
- memorize new words by repeating them silently or aloud
- seek the precise term to express meaning
- repeatedly write out or say words or phrases in a variety of contexts
- make personal dictionaries
- experiment with various elements of Chinese
- use mental images to remember new information
- group together sets of things (word formations, sentence structures, vocabulary words and phrases) with similar characteristics
- identify similarities and differences between aspects of Chinese and own language
- look for patterns and relationships, such as grouping radicals
- use previously acquired knowledge to facilitate a learning task
- associate new words or expressions with familiar ones, either in Chinese or in own language
- find information, using reference materials such as dictionaries, textbooks and grammars
- use available technological or other learning aids to support language learning; e.g., cassette recorders, computers
- use word maps, mind maps, diagrams, charts or other graphic representations to make information easier to understand and remember
- place new words or expressions in a context to make them easier to remember
- use induction to generate rules governing language use
- seek opportunities outside of class to practise and observe

- perceive and note down unknown words and expressions, noting also their context and function
- take lesson notes and review them
- memorize stroke order and direction of strokes through repetition
- make and use personal flashcards
- use cues given by the teacher to determine the appropriate tone for a specific word

Metacognitive

- check copied writing for accuracy
- make choices about how to learn
- rehearse or role-play language
- decide in advance to attend to the learning task
- reflect on learning tasks with the guidance of the teacher
- make a plan in advance about how to approach a language learning task
- reflect on the listening, reading and writing process
- decide in advance to attend to specific aspects of input
- listen or look for key words
- evaluate own performance or comprehension at the end of a task
- keep a learning log
- experience various methods of language acquisition, and identify one or more that are particularly useful personally
- be aware of the potential of learning through direct exposure to the Chinese language
- know how strategies may enable coping with texts containing unknown elements
- identify problems that might hinder successful completion of a task, and seek solutions
- monitor own speech and writing to check for persistent errors
- be aware of own strengths and weaknesses, identify own needs and goals, and organize strategies and procedures accordingly

Social/Affective

- initiate or maintain interaction with others
- participate in shared reading experiences
- seek the assistance of a friend to interpret a text
- reread familiar self-chosen texts to enhance understanding and enjoyment

- work cooperatively with peers in small groups
- understand that making mistakes is a natural part of language learning
- experiment with various forms of expression, and note their acceptance or nonacceptance by more experienced speakers
- participate actively in brainstorming and conferencing as prewriting and postwriting exercises
- use self-talk to feel competent to do the task
- be willing to take risks and to try unfamiliar tasks and approaches
- repeat new words and expressions occurring in own conversations, and make use of these new words and expressions as soon as appropriate
- reduce anxiety by using mental techniques, such as positive self-talk or humour
- work with others to solve problems and get feedback on tasks
- provide personal motivation by arranging own rewards when successful

Language Use Strategies

Interactive

- use words from first language to get meaning across; e.g., use a literal translation of a phrase in the first language, use a first language word but pronounce it as in Chinese
- acknowledge being spoken to
- interpret and use a variety of nonverbal clues to communicate; e.g., mime, pointing, gestures, drawing pictures
- indicate lack of understanding verbally or nonverbally
- ask for clarification or repetition when something is not understood
- use other speakers' words in subsequent conversations
- assess feedback from a conversation partner to recognize when a message has not been understood; e.g., raised eyebrows, blank look
- start again, using a different tactic, when communication breaks down
- use a simple word similar to the concept to convey, and invite correction
- invite others into the discussion
- ask for confirmation that a form used is correct

- use a range of fillers, hesitation and slowing devices and gambits to sustain conversations
- use circumlocution to compensate for lack of vocabulary
- repeat part of what someone has said to confirm mutual understanding
- summarize the point reached in a discussion to help focus the talk
- ask follow-up questions to check for understanding
- self-correct if errors lead to misunderstanding

Interpretive

- attend to gestures, intonation and visual supports to aid comprehension
- make connections between texts on the one hand, and prior knowledge and personal experience on the other
- use illustrations to aid reading comprehension
- determine the purpose of listening
- listen or look for key words
- listen selectively based on purpose
- make predictions about what is anticipated to be heard or read, based on prior knowledge and personal experience
- use knowledge of the sound–symbol system to aid reading comprehension
- infer probable meanings of unknown words or expressions from contextual clues
- prepare questions or a guide to note down information found in a text
- use key content words or discourse markers to follow an extended text
- reread several times to understand complex ideas
- summarize information gathered
- assess own information needs before listening, viewing or reading
- use skimming and scanning to locate key information in texts
- focus on parts of a character, such as the radical or sound element, to guess the meaning and/or pronunciation of a word

Productive

- mimic what the teacher says
- use nonverbal means to communicate
- copy what others say or write

- use words that are visible in the immediate environment
- use resources to increase vocabulary or other language structures
- use familiar repetitive patterns to compose oral or written texts (stories, songs, rhymes, familiar classroom routines/phrases/patterns)
- use illustrations to provide detail when producing own texts
- use various techniques to explore ideas at the planning stage, such as brainstorming or keeping a notebook or log of ideas
- use knowledge of sentence patterns to form new sentences
- be aware of and use the steps of the writing process: prewriting (gathering ideas, planning the text, research, organizing the text), writing, revision (rereading, moving pieces of text, rewriting pieces of text), correction (grammar, spelling, punctuation), publication (reprinting, adding illustrations, binding)
- use a variety of resources to correct texts, such as personal and commercial dictionaries, checklists, grammars, teachers
- take notes when reading or listening to assist in producing own text
- proofread and edit the final version of a text
- use circumlocution and definition to compensate for gaps in vocabulary
- apply grammar rules to improve accuracy at the correction stage
- compensate for avoiding difficult structures by rephrasing
- combine previously learned language elements with new language elements to produce new oral and written texts

General Learning Strategies

Cognitive

- classify objects and ideas according to their attributes; e.g., red objects and blue objects, animals that eat meat and animals that eat plants
- use models
- connect what is already known with what is being learned
- experiment with and concentrate on one thing at a time
- focus on and complete learning tasks

- write down key words and concepts in abbreviated form (verbal, graphic or numerical) to assist with performance of a learning task
- use mental images to remember new information
- distinguish between fact and opinion when using a variety of sources of information
- formulate key questions to guide research
- make inferences, and identify and justify the evidence on which these inferences are based
- use word maps, mind maps, diagrams, charts or other graphic representations to make information easier to understand and remember
- seek information through a network of sources, including libraries, the Internet, individuals and agencies
- use previously acquired knowledge or skills to assist with a new learning task
- choose learning activities that enhance understanding and enjoyment
- be encouraged to try, even though mistakes might be made
- take part in group decision-making processes
- use support strategies to help peers persevere at learning tasks; e.g., offer encouragement, praise, ideas
- take part in group problem-solving processes
- use self-talk to feel competent to do the task
- be willing to take risks and to try unfamiliar tasks and approaches
- monitor own level of anxiety about learning tasks, and take measures to lower it if necessary; e.g., deep breathing, laughter
- use social interaction skills to enhance group learning activities

Metacognitive

- reflect on learning tasks with the guidance of the teacher
- choose from among learning options
- discover how own efforts can affect learning
- reflect upon own thinking processes and individual learning style
- decide in advance to attend to the learning task
- divide an overall learning task into a number of subtasks
- make a plan in advance about how to approach a task
- identify own needs and interests
- manage own physical working environment
- keep a learning journal, such as a diary or a log
- develop criteria for evaluating own work
- work with others to monitor own learning
- take responsibility for planning, monitoring and evaluating learning experiences

Social/Affective

- watch others' actions and copy them
- seek help from others
- follow own natural curiosity and intrinsic motivation to learn
- participate in cooperative group learning tasks

GLOBAL CITIZENSHIP

The learning outcomes for Global Citizenship deal with the development of intercultural competence, encompassing some of the knowledge, attitudes and skills needed to be effective global citizens. The concept of global citizenship encompasses citizenship at all levels, from the local school and community to Canada and the world.

The various components of Global Citizenship are grouped under three cluster headings: “historical and contemporary elements of Chinese culture,” “affirming and valuing diversity” and “personal and career opportunities.” Each strand deals with a single aspect of intercultural competence.

Developing cultural knowledge and skills is a lifelong process. Knowledge of one's own culture is acquired over a lifetime. Cultures change over time. Rather than simply developing a bank of knowledge about the culture, it is more important for students to develop skills in accessing and understanding information on culture and in applying that knowledge for the purposes of interaction and communication. Students will gain cultural knowledge in the process of developing these skills. In this way, if they encounter elements of the culture they have not learned about in class, they will have the skills and abilities to deal with these new elements effectively and appropriately.

The “affirming and valuing diversity” heading covers knowledge, skills and abilities that are developed as a result of bringing other languages and cultures into relationship with one's own. There is a natural tendency, when learning a new language and culture, to compare it with what is familiar. Many students leave a second language learning experience with a heightened awareness and knowledge of their own language and culture. They will also be able to make some generalizations about languages and cultures based on their experiences and those of their classmates who may be from a variety of cultural backgrounds. This will provide students with an understanding of diversity within both a global and a Canadian context.

General Outcome for Global Citizenship

Students will acquire the knowledge, skills and attitudes to be effective global citizens.

GC-1 historical and contemporary elements of Chinese culture

Grade 7

Grade 8

Grade 9

Students will be able to:

GC-1.1 accessing/analyzing knowledge of Chinese culture	a. ask questions, in English, about elements of Chinese culture experienced in class; e.g., maps, pictures, posters	a. make observations of Chinese culture; e.g., observe Chinese culture in the community	a. compare and make connections between some elements of Chinese culture and own culture; e.g., clothing, music
GC-1.2 knowledge of Chinese culture	a. participate in activities and experiences that reflect elements of Chinese culture	a. participate in activities and experiences that reflect elements of Chinese culture	a. identify some things they have in common with Chinese people their own age b. explore some elements of Chinese culture
GC-1.3 applying cultural knowledge	a. observe and imitate practices that are common among Chinese people	a. identify elements of Chinese culture in the school and community	a. apply knowledge of Chinese culture to interpret similarities and differences between Chinese culture and own culture
GC-1.4 diversity within Chinese culture	a. experience diverse elements of Chinese culture	a. identify some elements that reflect diversity within Chinese culture	a. identify commonalities and differences among diverse groups within Chinese culture
GC-1.5 valuing Chinese culture	a. participate in cultural activities and experiences	a. participate in cultural activities and experiences	a. express an interest in learning about Chinese people and Chinese culture b. identify similarities between themselves and Chinese people

Students will acquire the knowledge, skills and attitudes to be effective global citizens.

GC-2 affirming and valuing diversity

	Grade 7	Grade 8	Grade 9
Students will be able to:
GC-2.1 awareness of first language	a. distinguish between elements of own first language and Chinese; e.g., identify sounds that have no equivalent in English	a. recognize similarities and differences between own first language and Chinese (basic word order)	a. recognize similarities and differences between own first language and Chinese
GC-2.2 general language knowledge	a. explore the variety of languages spoken by their classmates and members of their community b. identify similarities between different languages within their personal experience	a. identify differences and similarities among writing systems from different languages within their personal experience	a. recognize that within a linguistic group people from different regions may use differing pronunciation, vocabulary and structures b. recognize that in any language there are different words for the same thing
GC-2.3 awareness of own culture	a. explore similarities between own culture and other cultures	a. recognize similarities and differences between own culture and Chinese culture; e.g., celebrations, foods, roles of family members	a. identify some essential similarities and differences between own culture and Chinese culture
GC-2.4 general cultural knowledge	a. recognize that culture is expressed through a variety of forms; e.g., behaviours, stories, food, clothing	a. recognize that a variety of cultural practices are followed by their classmates and groups in their community b. recognize that speakers of the same language may come from different cultural backgrounds	a. recognize some of the factors that affect the culture of a particular region
